Says superintendent
School opening goes smoothly

"Monday's opening of schools in Appomattox County went smoothly," according to Lloyd Walton, superintendent of schools.

Walton said that enrollment in schools countywide is the same as the opening of schools last year, but added that he expects a slight increase this week. "I expect enrollment to be at around 3,250 pupils by then (the Labor Day Holiday) (this coming Monday Sept.-7).

Walton noted that statistically speaking, the opening of schools went smoothly. "Parents whose children were to be at Appomattox Elementary School last year, Walton noted, will remain much the same as did last year," Walton noted. "We do anticipate a very fine environment for learning; as compared to previous years, consequent improvements in the physical education teacher has which their children and Appomattox Primary School and Appomattox Elementary School.

Some other activities and programs have been modified or initiated last year and which will continue as a priority item with the county's Department of Social Services and with the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court on these problems.

"We do anticipate a very fine school year," Walton concluded. "The parents have been cooperative in the past and we encourage them to visit the schools and be involved in the activities of their children and involved, and to contact us if we can be of assistance," Walton said.

Board to meet with Pamplin PTA

A meeting between members of the Appomattox County School Board and the Pamplin Elementary School PTA has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 15 at Pamplin Elementary School, Lloyd Walton, superintendent of schools in Appomattox County, the meeting's purpose is to discuss plans for the new Pamplin Elementary School.

Walton noted that board members will present the PTA with a briefing on what the school board is considering in making a decision on whether to build a new school or renovate existing facilities. Walton noted that he will be at the meeting as well, to assist school board members in presenting the information.

Included in the information to be discussed will be cost of operation and anticipated savings that would result from closing the school in the end of the school year.

"I want to emphasize that the board has not made a decision," Walton stressed.

"Before this (next) year ends, we will have to make a decision," Walton said. "The crippled condition of the building and the fact that it is a turning point along with the beginning of a new era in education dictate that we do something."

Walton noted that the board is not bound by the decisions made by the PTA, but that the meeting is a necessary step in the process.

"Before we can say anything definite, we must have a public hearing," Walton said. "And of course before we can have a public hearing we must have a definite proposal. We have been working on this for two years and we have not yet reached that point. We have been getting a lot of input from citizens. We have been getting a lot of information from the state. We have been getting a lot of information from other localities. All of this information will be considered before we reach a decision."

Walton noted that things are not definite at this point. "We have not reached that point yet," Walton said. "
